Concerned Faculty meet

By Eric Bullock

Saturday at 10 a.m. the Concerned Faculty sponsored a meeting with representatives from the Missouri Federation of Teachers, the AAUP and the National Education Organization. The meeting was to give teachers a chance to see what each organization was about and how it may benefit their careers.

Dr. David Slater, a member of the Concerned Faculty, said the meeting was requested by the Northwest staff last summer.

"We circulated questionnaires when we first started last summer to all the faculty," Slater said. "One of the most asked for things was for a meeting with these organizations to see what they were like."

Collective Bargaining laws, Binding Arbitration and new tax policies to fund education were discussed at the meeting held in the Lower Lakeview Room in the Student Union.

Each representative was given 12 minutes to present their organization's goals and methods. Pat Kuehn, the representative from MFT, explained their goals for the future of Missouri.

"We oppose a 1-cent sales tax to be earmarked for education as a method to relieve the current budget crunch," Kuehn said. "It is a regressive sales tax in that it affects the poorer people more than the wealthier."

"Instead, we favor tax reform in the state. State corporations still only pay five percent on their income, and this is far below the national average," she said. "Because the state doesn't take in enough corporate tax money, it cannot attract business investments with hospital, education or medical funding."

Lloyd Jorgensen, of the AAUP, said that his organization along with the help of MFT and NEA has been lobbying in the state legislature for 10 years for a collective bargaining bill.

"Ten years ago when I addressed the state legislature, we told them: We don't say that all teachers should bargain collectively, we do say that they should have the right to do so, a right that they are now denied," Jorgensen said. "Every few years such a bill has come up and we have supported it, but every year it is voted down."

"It appears," said Jorgensen, that another similar bill will come up again this year. If it does, we will continue to lobby for it."

Mary Jungles, from NEA, explained how they helped faculty to organize and maintain good communication with the administrations.

"It is difficult to build an effective labor force with only a few dollars locally," Jungles said. "We provide help for local organizations in the forms of information, research data and lobbying power. Teachers have a job to do, and they don't have time to be full time labor negotiators as well."

"Through out organization, teachers are given the opportunity to continue their professional development through conferences, workshops and such to stay up on the latest in the teaching field," said Jungles.

"No organization can do for you what you want done. That is up the local people, but there are organizations that can help," Jungles said.

Fulton analysis:

Israel depends on U.S.

By Gene Niles

November 2nd, the United States Senate narrowly approved the sale of U.S. Advanced Warning Attack Control System (AWACS) planes to Saudia Arabia by a count of 52 to 48. The Reagan administration had found a way to deal with Congress once again.

This time in foreign affairs. It was only a few weeks ago that the house voted against the $8.5 billion Saudi Arabian deal by 301 to 111.

In addition to the AWACS, the Saudi deal included extra fuel tanks and side-winder missiles to extend the range and increase the punch of 60 F-15's already ordered.

The United States benefits from the sale in that we have a vital stake in Saudia Arabia's oil. We are able to fend off Soviet encroachment by providing the Saudi's with an adequate defense. The sale does not shift the balance of military strength in the Middle East away from Israel but Israeli Prime Minister Manachem Begin considers the AWACS sale a new serious danger.

"Everytime there is a loss in this kind of a large public relation sense, the Israelis in some ways lose, because the Israel's depend a great deal upon American foreign policy and American public opinion to maintain huge American support for Israel," said Dr. Richard Fulton, associate professor of political science.

"Israel is really not in too good of shape with huge inflation, internal problems and they have an Arab population that's growing six times faster than the Jewish population. It's a huge military burden to bear and they depend on the U.S. aid; Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of material given each year," Fulton said.

If things were not already tense in the Middle East, the recent assassination of Anwar Sadat of Egypt along with the AWACS sale has left Israel with further concern about her neighbors.

The United States had AWACS planes in Saudia Arabia long before the Nov. 2nd sale. During the Carter administration, the U.S. had sold 60 F-15 fighters to Saudia Arabia, but they were not owned by the Saudi's. The United States was running these planes for the Saudi's. So the AWACS issue has always been in front of the American people.

"It was more of a Washington issue and with some special business interest as well as pro-Israeli interest," Fulton said. "I think the bulk of the American people don't even care much about it. What happened, probably was that Reagan spent a lot of his chits that he has built up as President on the issue that was not important to him either. He kind of made the AWACS a large issue and then had to spend a lot of energies and time of these chits that he had built up to get this issue passed. In effect he made it an issue and then sort of won the issue, but it is an issue that shouldn't have been a major issue to begin with."

Quit Smoking for one day: Take the Pledge

M.D. Dance-a-thon tonight at Lamkin

The fifth annual Muscular Dystrophy Dance-a-thon at NWMSU will take place tonight from 7 p.m. until Sat. night at 9 p.m. in Lamkin Gym, said Dave Hancock, president of the Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity.

Sponsors of this year's Dance-a-thon are the AKLs and their little sis' organization, the Kalley Filleeans.

"The Dance-a-thon is held to raise money in the fight against muscular dystrophy by collecting pledges made to couples that dance for 26 straight hours," said Hancock.

Pam Crawford, a member of Kalley Filleean, along with Hancock are organizing the campus-wide event. "Two bands will be playing during the Dance-a-thon," said Hancock. "They are Nightwings and Storm."

The Inter-Residence Council will be sponsoring a Mardi-Gras tonight along with the Dance-a-thon. Other events included in the dancers' schedule are a frisbee golf tournament and a hat contest.

Shawn Rudkin, the muscular dystrophy honorary chairman, will be present both days. The eleven-year-old boy from Albany, Mo., is a victim of Werdnig-Hoffmann, a form of muscular dystrophy.

Steve Carpenter, a disc jockey from WMT in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will also make an appearance at the Dance-a-thon.

This is Carpenter's fifth appearance for this event at NWMSU, said Hancock.

"Approximately 50 couples are scheduled to dance and the dollar goal for this year is $5,000," Hancock said.

Great American Smokeout next week

The Great American Smokeout will come to campus Nov. 19, said Dr. Richard Hart, professor of bioscience at NWMSU.

The Smokeout is nationally sponsored by the American Cancer Society and is being sponsored on campus by the students in Hart's bioscience course.

An annual even, The Great American Smokeout is designed to help people who smoke to kick the habit by encouraging smokers to stop smoking for one full day.

The campus campaign involves bioscience students who are working to get pledges not to smoke on Nov. 19.

Hart, assisted by Bob Henry, Public Relations Officer at NWMSU, is working on a program to solicit pledges from University faculty and staff members.

The day after the smokeout, the bioscience students will be contacting those persons who pledged to see if they kept the pledge of a smokeless day.

"I am delighted to participate in the Great American Smokeout," Henry said, "being one of the prime offenders myself, I'm going to do everything possible to stop that day."

Curriculum Committee deals with courses

The Faculty Curriculum and Degree Requirements Committee is a committee designed to deal with all policies and individual student petitions relating to undergraduate curriculum and degree requirements as well as set curriculum and degree requirements, said Dr. John Hopper Professor of history and humanities and chairman of the committee.

"We examine all courses that are proposed and any changes," Hopper said. "We look at a lot of things, such as do these proposed courses fit into the overall plan of the academic programs of the University."

Hopper said that new courses originate with the department and are then passed on to the division for approval. The Curriculum Committee then reports the courses that it deems favorable to the Intercurriculum Committee, which is a screening committee for the Faculty Senate, Hopper said.

From there, the proposals go on to the Senate for their ratification and finally the administration makes the final approval.

Hopper said that the Faculty Curriculum Committee is composed of 12 members with one member from each division and one from the department of Library Science and one student member. The Committee of the Faculty appoints the members.

Hopper said that, in the middle '70s, the University didn't have a Faculty Senate.

"The Curriculum Committee was part of the package," said Hopper. "It helps give the faculty very significant control in choosing courses and programs at the University."

Hopper added that the Committee also handled petitions from students for waiving a specific degree requirement for graduation.

American Marketing Association on campus

By Marvin Wilmes

A chapter of the American Marketing Association has been established at NWMSU, said Don Nothstine, professor of business and co-advisor of the organization.

The new organization has 30-35 marketing majors, Nothstine said.

"Dave Kolar, the president of the campus chapter, and Scott McDonald, initiated the action to get the chapter started last May," Nothstine said. "I told them that it sounded like a good idea and if there was enough interest this fall we would go ahead with it."

"I sent off for the package to start the chapter, and these two men were still interested when the semester started. We found that the students were also very interested in this kind of organization, so we began the chapter in September."

Other officers of the organization include, Rachelle Barmann, vice-president and Kathy Green, treasurer.

"We meet every two weeks. On the first Tuesday and third Thursday of every month we begin the meetings at 5:30 p.m.," Green said.

"We had problems with students that wanted to come but couldn't because the meetings were held on Tuesday nights," said Scott Jansen, the student in charge of programming for the chapter. "We decided that if we interchanged from Tuesday to Thursday meeting times, we would get a larger number of students and they would be able to attend at least one meeting each month."

Jansen said that originally the organization was designed as a business organization specifically, but not only for marketing students.

"It is an offshoot of Pi Beta Alpha, the general business organization. The American Marketing Association is specifically for those interested in marketing," Jansen said.

"Right now we're in the process of just getting things off of the ground. We have had our elections, we're raising dues and trying to put together a money making project," said Jansen. "We haven't scheduled any speakers yet. We're hoping to schedule two or three next semester."

Kolar said that he first learned of the organization from his brother who attended Illinois State where they had a chapter of AMA.

"My sophomore year I got a little tired of the grind of just going to classes and not doing anything with marketing outside of them," Kolar said. "There wasn't a marketing organization on campus, except the Pi Beta Alpha for general business and the ASPA for management. I thought that perhaps we should have an organization also."

"My brother was a member of AMA at Illinois State and he said that it was a great organization, it was national and that marketing majors wanted to be a part of it," Kolar said. "He said that it was a good group and that people got together and had a good time talking about marketing and carrying out marketing functions, such as guest speakers and social functions within the marketing group."

Kolar said that he talked to Sharon Browning, business instructor at NWMSU, and found out that there had been an AMA chapter at Northwest about seven years ago, but that it had died out from lack of interest or lack of marketing majors.

"I decided to pursue the organization anyway," Kolar said. "Mr. Nothstine sent for the packet and we started the chapter this fall."

The organization plans to have a money making project this month called the Kiss the Goat contest.

"Basically what we're going to do is set up stands where we have people contribute money," Green said. "We'll have different faculty and administrators names on a jar and people will contribute money. The person who gets the most donations is the winner of the contest."

"On Nov. 30th we'll announce the winner of the contest at the Missouri Western vs. NWMSU basketball game. That person will be the one who will kiss the goat in front of the student body and the game's audience. We will also have two runner-ups," Green said.

"It kind of works out to where the students can, if they have a favorite teacher, vote with the money to see them kiss the goat," Jansen said.

Ichikewa to continue studies

Former Northwest student Mitsuhiro Ichikewa has been awarded a $2,000 scholarship to continue his graduate studies in political science at Howard University in Washington, D.C. Ichikewa was enrolled in the University's English as a Second Language Program from June of 1980 through December of 1980.

Ag Council sponsors booth

The Agriculture Council sponsored a booth at the National Agricultural Career Show at the 84th National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11 through 13. Members of the Council talked to high school kids from all 50 states. Carl Jensen, Agriculture Council President, worked in the booth. Other members of the Council also attended.

Trip abroad being sponsored

The foreign language program at Northwest will sponsor a 15-day trip to Spain and Portugal next May, said Dr. Luis Macias, associate professor of Spanish. Macias said the trip is scheduled in late May (the exact date is yet to be determined) and will provide either three hours of academic credit or just an opportunity for relaxation and personal enjoyment and enrichment. He said the trip is open to all interested persons and there is no need to be able to speak the Spanish language. Cost of the trip is to be about $1,250. Included in the cost will be the round trip from Kansas City to New York and then to Madrid; transportation within Spain and Portugal by motorcoach; transfers to and from the airport to hotels; first-class hotels with private bath, double and triple rooms; continental breakfast and dinner daily; sightseeing and airport baggage handling. Persons interested should contact Dr. Macias, Northwest Missouri State University, Maryville, Mo. A $100 deposit is needed by December 5, 1981, to insure reservations. Those persons wishing University academic credit will work out academic assignments with Dr. Macias.

TKEs to sponsor contests

The Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity will be sponsoring a free throw contest during the half-times of all home basketball games, said Jeff McNeely, TKE president. "When you come into the ballgame, you'll get a numbered ticket and we'll keep the stub," he said. "At half-time, we'll draw one of the stubs and the ticket holder will have a chance to make a free throw." If the person makes the free throw, he has a chance of quitting and taking a prize or trying to make another throw. If three baskets in a row are made, the winner will receive a basketball. McNeely said. The prizes will be offered by area merchants, he said. "We hope it will help draw more people to the games."

Drawings exhibit on display

An exhibit of drawings by Randy Twaddle is on display in the Olive DeLuce Fine Arts building Gallery at Northwest. Twaddle is a 1980 Northwest graduate who currently works for the Delahanty Galleries in Dallas, Texas. Twaddle is a native of Elmo and a graduate of West Nodaway High School. Phil Laber, instructor of art and director of the Gallery at Northwest, says the drawings fall into a narrative art form. He says the drawings have less emphasis on the traditional visual aspect and more emphasis on a narrative text. Gallery hours are from 1-3 p.m. Monday through Friday and by special appointment.

Mallette promoted by Army

Lamar Mallette, Jr., a senior enlistment instructor with Northwest's Army ROTC program, was promoted last week from Master Sergeant to Sergeant Major by the United States Army. Mallette, a native of Savannah, Georgia, has served in the Army for 20 years and has been with the ROTC program at Northwest for the past month. Mallette's wife, Flavia, pinned the bars on her husband during the ceremonies conducted by Major Terry Fiest, head of the military science program at Northwest.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor:

Dear Students:

Homecoming was a terrific success due to the participation of the students. Everyone involved with Homecoming should be thanked for their effort. The Variety Show, parade house decorations and dance were all successful. We would like to take this opportunity to thank and congratulate the students of Northwest for a job well done.

Sincerely,

Outdoor trips planned by Gates

A new NWMSU outdoor program is now available for students, staff and faculty. The program is being coordinated by Steve Gates.

Some of the major events coming up are downhill skiing in Breckenridge, Colorado, Jan. 2-8. The ski trip is filling up very fast. There is also a Thanksgiving backpack in the Ozarks Nov. 25-29th. Sign-up deadline is Nov. 18th. There will be a Bald Eagle rendezvous Dec. 5th at the Squaw Creek National Wildlife Refuge. Sign-up deadline is Nov. 30th.

This Sunday from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. a Horseback Ride/Cookout is planned at the Rancho del Rayo.

"We're actually having a fantastic response for this horseback ride/cookout idea," said Gates. "We already got them in two days. This last week we had about 30 people come in and want to sign up. I can only take 15 to 20. We're going to do it two weekends. We're also going to do it on Nov. 22nd. I have no doubt they will fill up real quickly."

"I think all of these programs have been getting a pretty good response. A lot of the people have been inquiring about the spring break trips. We did a survey when we originally were considering this idea very early in the semester, actually last summer. Surveys went out to the dorms and a little bit off campus. We found out that spring break is really a fantastic time. They really want to do some outdoor type trips," Gates said.

Some of the projected spring semester outings are: cross-country skiing; horseback riding; Ozark canoe trip; nature photography workshop; trip to Padre Island, Texas, or Florida Coast; a trip to the Tetons in Wyoming; and backpacking in the Ozarks.

An equipment rental service is currently available to students, staff, faculty, and their families through the Health, Physical Ed and Recreation department in Lamkin Gym. For further information on the program call extension 1345 or drop by the office, located next to the bookstore.

The Northwest Missourian is published weekly with the exception of six holidays and four semester breaks.

Subscription price for one calendar year is $8.50.

Second-class postage is paid at Maryville, Mo.

Dance-a-thon: a fight for a good cause

The Muscular Dystrophy Dance-a-thon will begin tonight at 7 p.m. and will end Saturday at 9 p.m.

The sponsors of the event are the Alpha Kappa Lambda Fraternity and their little sister organization, the Kalley Falleeans. Pam Crawford, a member of Kalley Falleean, and Dave Hancock, Alpha Kappa Lambda president, are the organizers of the event.

The monetary goal for this year's event is $5,000. Hopefully, this goal will be met and beat. But, there is more to it than the money.

Approximately 50 couples are scheduled to dance the 26-hours. These couples are donating their time to raising money for muscular dystrophy, a disease of undetermined cause that is characterized by a progressive degeneration of muscle tissue.

These couples are helping others who are fighting to live. The money that is raised at this dance-a-thon will go to medical research to help find the cause of and a cure for muscular dystrophy.

Shawn Rudkin, the muscular dystrophy honorary chairman, will be present both days. The 11-year-old boy from Albany is a victim of Werdnig-Hoffmann, a form of muscular dystrophy.

Pledges and donations can still be made for the Muscular Dystrophy Dance-a-thon. Think about it.

Mysterious chalk writings are disgrace

The writing on campus property is surely a practice that any two-year-old wouldn't consider doing. Defacing state property is a crime.

The free advertising that has been seen everywhere from J.W. Jones Student Union to the residence halls looks like the work of a misguided monotreme.

Chalking in one's thoughts is about as permanent as the stage of stupidity.

As students walk across campus during the day, so does the mysterious chalk at night. Why wait until dark?

Plainly, the marks left by the person(s) shows the lack of mentality contained within.

Not only does it take away from the environment that this University is supposed to present, but it suggests that a regular practice of partying or going to a concert is made by students.

The clutter on the sidewalks isn't useful to those with a real purpose. The midnight maniac(s) carrying on such acts are to be commended on their ignorance of how to use posters for advertising purposes.

Chalking up the campus is hopefully a washed-up fad.

Musical to premiere

Prize winner at NWMSU

By Marnita Hein

The NWMSU theatre department will be performing one of the biggest musical productions in Northwest history entitled, "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying." Opening night is Nov. 12 at 8 p.m. in the Charles Johnson Theatre.

"The show is a delightful satire adopted to modern times," said Dr. Charles Schultz, associate professor of the speech and theatre department and director of the play.

The musical is about a young man's rise to success. His success comes from, not hard work or education, but through a few simple rules from a book he has been reading. The book tells him to watch out for the pitfalls of any business. Some of those pitfalls being the office party, the office wolf, the influence of the chairman of the board and how to fling the boss and the boss' secretary.

The musical portrays a keen competition between the boss' nephew and the main character. Both characters are wanting to advance upward in the World Wide Wicket Company.

"The play is not meant to be chauvinistic," Schultz said. "However, all of the executives are male."

The stage cast is made up of 43 men and women from various other departments, not just men and women from the music and theatre department. There are 23 men and women in the orchestra and between 15 and 20 more people behind the scenes.

"There are at least 80 people working on the show," said Schultz. "All 80 people are vital to the success of the production."

"To put on a play of this size takes absolute cooperation by everyone backstage and onstage," Schultz said. "All of them (people involved) must work together. No one is more important than anyone else in this show. We are all working to a unified goal—to give the audience a good show."

"We seem to be lacking in enthusiasm because we don't have an audience," said Cindy Mayor, one of the main characters in the show.

The audience is used as a confidante," said Schultz. "The audience knows the information before the characters know it, the audience even gets to see the scene changes."

"There are 16 different sets that must be shifted between 23 different scenes," Schultz said. "Everything must be organized and consistent." The reason for the different sets is the fact that the musical takes place in an office building and so many locales are shown.

There are a number of Northwest faculty involved with this show. Schultz is the overall supervisor and director of the show. Byron Mitchell is the music coordinator. Rick Weymuth is director of the chore, and Al Serger is director of the orchestra. Theophil Ross and Chandis Fischer worked side by side in the costume department. Fisher conceived the costumes and Ross designed them. Ken Brown is in charge of the scenes and lightings. Michael Ludwick is the technical director in charge of shifting the scenes during the performance.

For the first time also the musical will involve two student choreographers. Ron Jackson and Janet Curry are responsible for three musical numbers. Randy Jackson is the assistant director to Schultz, and Roger Stricker is the assistant to the assistant director. There are two stage managers whom everyone listens to. Jane Sinn and Julie Willy are in complete charge of the show during the performances.

None of the songs from the original Broadway show ever made the top ten charts. The big reason for this is that the songs are cleverly engrained to the script itself. "The tunes are upbeat and catchy," Schultz said.

The musical boasts seven big production numbers. "This is a lot of chore for any one show," said Schultz.

The original show was performed on Broadway in New York in 1962. Abe Burrows directed the original Broadway play in '62. Frank Loesser wrote the music and lyrics. The musical was originally based on the book by Shepherd Mead. Bob Foss staged the musical numbers. Willie Gilbert and Jack Weinstock were involved with the original as well.

The original musical won the Tony Award, which is the Broadway equivalent to Academy Awards. The musical won the award for the best musical and also for the best leading actor. The show also won the New York Drama Critics Award for the best play on Broadway and the Pulitzer Prize. The Pulitzer Prize is seldom given to a musical.

"Our cast is really getting psyched up," said Debbie Smith, one of the main characters in the musical. "It's a real nice, light comedy. The rehearsals are going well. Every character is likeable, even the bad guys. It's a colorful fun show that everyone would enjoy."

"Basically the show is going along real well," said Mayor. "It's fun working with all the different personalities. The play is fast moving and really good. Everyone is giving it their all. I'm looking forward to the performances."

"I recommend this show for everyone," said Schultz. "It is a good family show. This is a show that will not let the audience down."

This two and a half hour show will be performed Nov. 12-14 at 8 p.m. A matinee will be performed Nov. 15 at 2 p.m. All performances will be held in the Charles Johnson Theatre in the Deluce Fine Arts Building.

Students and faculty with activity tickets will be admitted to the show free. Tickets are otherwise priced at $2.50 for adults, students without activity tickets $1, senior citizens and groups of 15 or more can purchase a ticket for $.75. All seats are reserved. Tickets may be purchased at the Charles Johnson box office Monday thru Friday from 1 to 4 p.m. Some tickets will also be available at the door unless that evening's show is sold out.

For more information call 582-7141 ext. 1325 or 1171 in the Fine Arts Building.

Student involvement Wyant's specialty

By Teresa Kincaid

The name Jim Wyant seems to be popping up a lot lately on campus and it is no wonder. He's very involved with the students in all aspects; as a faculty member, organizations sponsor and friend.

Raised on a dairy and cattle farm in Milan, Mo., Wyant attended Northeast Missouri State University in Kirksville, where he received his B.S. and Masters Degree in Business Education. Wyant taught two years at Bowling Green High School in Bowling Green, Mo., before coming to Northwest in 1975 to teach Business Education.

In 1978, he applied for the Director of Financial Aids position which he now holds and continues to teach one accounting class per semester.

When asked what he likes to do in his free time, "I don't have any," Wyant said.

It's easy to see why. He's been the Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity and Kappa Kappa Gamma (AKL Little Sister) sponsor since he's been at Northwest, Student Union Board sponsor for two years, Inter-Fraternity Sponsor for two years, Student Senate sponsor one year and is now permanent Homecoming Committee sponsor.

Though all groups are rewarding since he gets to work with students, Wyant said that being the fraternity sponsor is the most rewarding to him.

"I get to see the individuals pledge and watch them grow and develop responsibility," said Wyant.

There have been many University changes in the time that he has been here. "I've seen extreme enrollment increases, when I first came we had approximately 3,600 students, now we're up to about 5,100. I believe it is due to the work of the University and the developed programs," said Wyant.

"When I first started the job as Director of Financial Aids, we had money and we could help students. Now it's difficult to explain to students why they're not eligible for aid," said Wyant.

Wyant has also seen many changes in the students themselves. "Student leaders say there's a lot of apathy on campus, but I don't believe there's nearly as much as there was five, six or ten years ago," Wyant said. "This year's freshman class seems to be more responsible than freshman classes in past years. The number of participants in the elections, Student Union Board and the orientation program was overwhelming."

"We've got some very fine people in all organizations, and I've become very fond of the student leaders," he said. "I have all the confidence in the world in them."

Wyant said that he likes his job and doesn't foresee leaving Northwest. "I want to be active in student development. As long as I can work with student organizations, I'll be happy. You can't always see results, but you get to see people grow when they're given responsibility," said Wyant.

Bearcats get offensive in 19-8 win over Chiefs

By Dwayne McClellan

Northwest Missouri State utilized a balanced offense to defeat Morningside, 19-8, Saturday in Sioux City, Iowa. With the victory, the Bearcats completed their schedule with a 6-4 record.

The 'Cats' running game generated 195 yards, while the passing attack netted 194. The balanced assault pleased Northwest head coach Jim Redd.

"We have been passing really well in the last two weeks," Redd said. "We had a good balance in our offense. It wasn't really good, but it was good."

The Bearcats and Chiefs were scoreless most of the first half, until with slightly less than seven minutes left in the second quarter, senior noseguard Charlie White blocked a punt and returned the ball 22 yards for Northwest's initial touchdown.

On its next series, Morningside, pinned deep in its own territory, was forced to punt once again.

After taking possession of the ball on its own 39, Northwest quarterback Brian Quinn connected with Eddie Coleman for a 42-yard pass completion to the 19 yard line of the Chiefs. Running back Greg Baker carried it in for six points on the ensuing play.

Late in the third quarter, Northwest added its final touchdown, as Quinn hit Coleman with a 28-yard aerial. The play capped an 84-yard drive.

Morningside broke through in the fourth quarter, setting up a touchdown with an interception of a Quinn pass.

Redd said he was happy with his squad's performance, particularly because it defeated a team from a strong conference.

"We beat a good, strong football team," he said. "The North Central League is a good conference and is probably stronger than ours as a whole. Our conference hasn't done very well against the NCC, so it is always good to beat a team from that league," Redd said.

"It was a big win, in that it provided us with a winning season, at 6-4," he said. "It also helped re-establish our winning tradition. The blocked punt was a big play, as it ignited our team."

"It was an important win in the sense that it gave our seniors a chance to go out as winners. They stood tough after the Northeast game," Redd said.

The Bearcat coach credited his offensive line in general, and the blocking of fullback Steve Weigman in particular, for the productive Bearcat passing performance.

"When Quinn rolls out, it requires blocking from the fullback," Redd said. "Steve Weigman has done a really good job and has been more effective on the roll block on the corner that lets Quinn roll out. We don't pass exclusively out of the option, but a lot of our big plays have come as a result of this type of passing."

"Baker and (Dale) DeBourge played well and made a couple of good runs, and Coleman played a good game, as he received and blocked well," Redd said.

Northwest dominated the Chiefs, statistically, limiting Morningside to 105 yards passing and 115 yards on the ground. The Bearcats also held the edge in first downs, 18-16.

Quinn completed just eight of 22 passing attempts, but he made the completions count. The sophomore signal-caller finished the season with 1,047 yards via the pass.

Coleman led all receivers, netting 85 yards in three catches. Brad Sellmeyer caught one pass, a 56-yard effort.

DeBourge paced the Bearcat rushers with 72 yards in 13 carries. Baker and Quinn added 53 and 45 yards, respectively.

With the Bulldogs of Northeast having won the MIAA title, Redd said he thinks his Bearcats could end up in the second spot.

"We have a good chance to place second, but no lower than third," he said. "We'll find out after this week. This alone will help create interest next year."

Bulldogs sweep to MIAA title

KIRKSVILLE - Northeast Missouri State clinched the championship of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, breaking eight school records along the way, in decimating Lincoln University, 62-24 Saturday.

Quarterback Tom Hayes threw a record four touchdown passes in leading the Bulldogs over the winless Blue Tigers.

Placekicker Dave Austinson established marks in three categories, kicking his 24th consecutive extra-point, his 26th PAT and his ninth field goal of the year. Austinson also tied a school record with two field goals in the contest.

The 62-point outburst also was an all-time Bulldog high.

After launching the 1981 campaign with three losses in their first four encounters, the Bulldogs now own a 6-3 overall mark and are 4-0 in the MIAA. Lincoln, now 0-10 and 0-5, suffered its 18th loss in succession.

conference victory over Missouri-Rolla.

The loss eliminated the Miners from contention for the conference title, dropping them to 2-1-1 in the MIAA.

Rolla jumped out in front in the first quarter when running back Brian Paris carried it in from one yard out. Bob Connor's two-yard touchdown run drew the Indians even at 7-7. Rumping's touchdown reception and a 26-yard field goal by Ed Hotz vaulted SEMO to a 17-7 edge.

The Miners closed out the scoring late in the first half with a 26-yard aerial from Dennis Pirkle to Jim Gambill.

The Indians raised their record to 2-8 overall and 2-2 in the MIAA. Rolla slipped to 5-3-1 overall.

Central Missouri 28, Evangel 14

WARRENSBURG - Central Missouri State took advantage of eight Evangel turnovers in rolling past the Crusaders in a non-conference game.

Scott Loveland and Herricks Cunningham tossed four touchdown passes in the first half to pace a Mule assault which generated 289 total yards. Central gained 231 yards via the pass.

The Mules upped their season record to 3-3-3. The Crusaders fell to 4-5.

Independents bury Greeks in All-Star game

Dan Coppock and Bob Whitebread scored touchdowns, leading their Independent team to a 13-0 victory over the Fraternity team in the first annual Intramural All-Star football game Nov. 6.

"Everything went smoothly in the All-Star game," Assistant Intramural Director Rich Matzes said. "We are going to start having the game every year."

Other intramural activities presently progressing include football and billiards. Matzes said competition in both activities will conclude in the next two weeks.

The women's volleyball tournament has been slated to commence Nov. 16. Officials finalized details concerning the tournament at a meeting Nov. 10.

Weigh-ins for intramural wrestling were held this week. Competition will take place Nov. 18-19 at Lamkin Gym.

A swimming meet has been scheduled for Nov. 17 at the Foster Aquatic Center. Entrants will compete for team points in the meet.

Martindale and Lamkin facilities will be open for student recreational use, beginning at the end of November, Matzes said.

'Kittens launch season on winning note

By Stu Osterthun

Sophomore Diane Kloewer scored 16 points and had six assists to lead the Northwest Missouri State Bearkitten basketball team to an 81-42 romp over Southwestern Junior College of Creston, Iowa, Nov. 6 at Mt. Airy, Iowa.

Four other 'Kittens were in double figures, led by junior Mary Wiebke's 12 points. Senior Jodi Giles, junior Traci Hayes and freshman Marla Sapp had 10 points apiece. Giles had a game-high nine rebounds.

All 12 players who made the trip saw action. Head coach Wayne Winstead started Kloewer, Wiebke, Giles, Hayes and junior Monica Booth.

Winstead said the teams played four 10-minute quarters instead of the usual two 20-minute halves.

"Considering the amount of time we practiced and the experience we have, we were impressed with how they (the 'Kittens) played," he said. "We still have some wrinkles to iron out."

Winstead said Northwest ran two different types of offenses and one defense.

"We ran our man or continuity offense, and we ran our offense for the 1-3-1 defense," he said. "I thought we worked well against both defenses."

"We played a man defense all the way. Except for a couple of situations we did okay."

As a team, Northwest shot 44.9 percent from the floor. The Bearkittens out-rebounded SWCC, 51-34.

"Diane Kloewer led in points and did a fine job," Winstead said. "She played an exceptional floor game also. Wiebke, Hayes, Sapp and Giles all played well.

"We probably could get into a little better shape. The next two or three weeks with continued work will probably eliminate that problem," he said.

The Bearkittens returned to Maryville to play their annual green-white scrimmage in Lamkin Gym Tuesday. The team will launch its regular-season schedule when it travels to Emporia, Kan., to participate in the Emporia State Tournament Nov. 20-21.

Redd sees hope for future in 6-4 performance

By Dwayne McClellan

With the playing season completed, Northwest Missouri State head coach Jim Redd can look back and analyze his squad's performance in 1981. Already, he said he saw the year as one full of ups and downs.

"It's been an enjoyable year for me as a coach," he said. "The attitude and effort on the part of the coaches and players were really something. Everybody worked very hard. I feel that our tradition is on the move," Redd said.

When the season began, the offensive line was considered a weak spot because of inexperience (only one senior returning), but Redd said he sees this group as constantly improving.

"The line is developing," he said. "They are playing better and getting off the ball better. They are not there yet, but they need to be complimented."

The six-year coach of the Bearcats stressed that his team is still young, with 27 of the 45 travelling squad first and second-year players. The seniors, Redd said, have provided necessary leadership and guidance for the younger players.

"The offense has come on and has started to jell in the last two weeks," Redd said.

The 1981 season was sprinkled with high points and low points. Redd pointed to the opening-day win over Pittsburg State as one of the Bearcats' highest plateaus.

"Since that loss, Pittsburg State hasn't lost a game, and this week they play Missouri Western for the championship of their conference," he said.

"Emporia State was also another high point, because, at that time, we were 1-2 and needed it (the victory). The game against Central was also important, because it was the first conference game. The Southeast game was up there, because we were coming off a loss to Northeast. And the Morningside game helped set the stage for next year's program," Redd said.

"As for lows, the Northeast loss was our biggest low. We were all shocked (to lose, 52-0), but they are the conference champs. In the Rolla game, we just did not play well enough to win. As for another low point, we wanted to win the Missouri Western game but just didn't," he said.

Statistically, Northwest led its opposing teams in first downs, 138-131. The Bearcats gained 75 first downs on the ground, while 48 came via passing and 15 occurred on penalties.

Leading the league in ground offense most of the season, the 'Cats ground out 1194 yards rushing, while the defense held the opposition to 933 yards on the ground. Northwest out-rushed opponents 119.4-93.3 on the average.

The Bearcat passing attack logged 1188 yards, for a 118.8 average over the 10-game season. That figure was eclipsed by the 1331 yards allowed by the Northwest defensive unit.

Greg Baker led the 'Cats in rushing, gaining 438 yards in 141 carries. Dale DeBourge followed with 435 yards.

Steve Weigman had 139 yards on the ground.

Sophomore quarterback Brian Quinn connected on 60 of 139 passing attempts for 1047 yards and seven touchdowns.

Brad Sellmeyer led the receiving corps, catching 14 passes for 381 yards and two touchdowns. His average reception netted 27.2 yards. Smokey Curtis caught 13 aeriels, for 228 yards and one touchdown.

Gary Hogue, a mainstay in the Bearcat punting game, kicked the ball 66 times, often under pressure, for an average of 34.9 yards. Hogue's longest punt covered 71 yards.

The defensive squad held the opposition close in many crucial situations and was led by experienced players in most areas.

Chip Gregory led the ends and linebackers with 114 tackles, including 45 solo stops, to his credit. Twenty-six of Gregory's tackles resulted in yardage loss. Noseguard Charlie White contributed 61 tackles, including 35 unassisted hits. Bob Paul followed, with 31 assisted and 10 solo stops.

Greg Lees paced the secondary forces, recording 71 tackles, 38 of which were unassisted. Lees also had three interceptions. Pete Barrett and Jeff Conway each chipped in with 40 stops apiece. Barrett had 16 solo tackles and one interception. Conway contributed 18 unassisted tackles and two interceptions.

Redd said he hopes to use this season as a foundation for better seasons.

"We had a good year, a year to build on," he said.

Spikers fall in state tournament, prepare for Regionals

By Jim Kirkpatrick

Northwest Missouri State's Bearkitten volleyball team finished second in the Missouri State MAIAW Division II Championship Tournament, dropping the title match to Central Missouri State Nov. 7.

Northwest and Central will both advance to the AIAW Region VI Division II tournament at Lamkin Gym Nov. 20-21.

The 'Kittens won three matches and lost two at Warrensburg, giving them a record of 48-14-1 going into regional action. Northwest opened up the tournament by defeating Missouri-St. Louis, 16-14. The Bearkittens then dropped a pair, 15-13, 15-6, to the Jennies of Central Missouri State. Northwest bounced back, however, in the quarterfinals, downing Harris-Stowe, 15-6, 15-11, and kept the momentum flowing by defeating Southeast Missouri State in the semifinals, 15-7, 13-15, 15-5, 15-4.

Northwest encountered Central a fifth time this season in the tournament's championship match. The 'Kittens had earlier won Central's own tournament, defeating the Jennies in the finals Sept. 25. The Bearkittens also bested Central in another tournament, at Missouri Western.

The 'Kittens, unable to find any offensive punch, succumbed to the Jennies in the final match of the state tournament, 3-15, 2-15, 11-15. Northwest scored only one "kill" in the opening game of the match and allowed the Jennies to jump off to sizeable leads in all three pairings.

"Central played extremely well and made very few mistakes," Bearkitten head coach Pam Stanek said.

Miriam Heilman led the 'Kittens in kills in the tournament, recording 32.

Northwest's Cheryl Ahlquist suffered an ankle injury in the match with Missouri-St. Louis, but Stanek said Ahlquist will be ready for regional action.

The Bearkittens will battle seven other regional teams for one of two berths to the national tournament. Not all eight spots are currently filled, but Stanek said, "The two Missouri schools (Northwest and Central), Northern Iowa, University of Minnesota-Duluth and North Dakota State are by far the strongest teams in the tournament."

Stanek said the home-court advantage in the regional tournament could be an important aid to the Bearkitten cause.

"Home court advantage is what helped us beat Missouri," she said. "If we can have the support, it can make all the difference."

The Final Score

Inconsistency hurt Bearcats

By Jim Offner

With the completion of yet another football season now behind us, let us gaze upon the overall performance of our Bearcat squad and attempt to reason why it did not go "all the way."

Northwest Missouri State fans were promised that their team would finish the season and nothing more. The Bearcats seem to defy analysts at every turn, wallowing in the cellar one year, then battling for the title the next. After a 2-8 effort last season, Northwest started the 1981 campaign with several question marks hanging over its defense, particularly in the secondary. However, the defensive unit stood out as the team's most consistent strong point throughout the year, save for a 52-0 nightmare involving newly-crowned conference champion Northeast Missouri State.

Northwest Missouri's offense, slumbering through the first six games of the season, finally came to life against Lincoln, a team that is really as bad as it appears. Northeast came to town and asserted itself as truly deserving of the MAIA title, shutting off the Bearcat's league-leading rushing force at minus 59 yards. But Northwest rebounded for victories over Southeast Missouri State and Morningside to close out the season, looking impressive in both outings.

Although a 6-4 record is not exactly unimpressive, especially from a club many feared wouldn't even finish at 4-6, a little consistency could have taken Jim Redd's team a lot farther. The 'Cats launched the season by holding off a strong Pittsburg State team, 9-6. Northwest's defense came on to keep the team within striking distance of the Gorillas, who had jumped out to a 6-0 edge. The offense, while sluggish, did manage a touchdown for the needed margin of victory.

The Green and White defense again captured the hearts of the Maryville faithful the following week, shutting out the always-powerful Nebraska-Omaha Mavericks until the dying moments. Any offensive push at all could have bagged Northwest its second win of the year. But there wasn't a touchdown or a field goal to be found.

The Griffons of Missouri Western finally solved the mystery to Northwest's defense in the 'Cats' next contest, disposing of the Green and White, 20-8. The result might have been closer, had it not been for an interception that was returned for a touchdown late in the game.

Northwest then rode to the top of the roller coaster with wins over Emporia State and Central Missouri. But the Bearcats had trouble holding onto the ball the following week against Missouri-Rolla. Bearcat turnovers at crucial junctures facilitated a Miner victory. That loss was perhaps the most devastating to the Bearcat hopes for a conference title, because it broke the momentum Northwest had generated going in to the heart of its conference schedule. The 'Cats reached the pinnacle once again in drubbing Lincoln, only to be embarrassed by Northeast. Northwest then closed out the year with victories. A yo-yo should have such ups and downs.

Overall, Northwest has good reason to be proud of its accomplishments this season. The Bearcats demonstrated defensive strength many observers felt they would lack. The team's 6-4 showing lends substance to hope for a bright future.

Northwest shapes up...

Up one, down one, groan, splash, get thin, think gorgeous. The fitness boom has grown for more than a decade. Improving the body has become a national as well as a Northwest Missouri obsession.

The style of the campus is one of fanatic dedication to jogging, swimming, lifting weights and playing racquetball. More Northwest Missourians are eating right and taking care of their bodies.

As the Northwest Missourians improve their bodies, the sports shops are improving their business. The American market in sport shoes is well over $1 billion. Americans have spent roughly over $50 million on diet and exercise books.

Hollywood is even getting into the swing of things. Richard Simmons, a cheerleader of fitness, is becoming a leading media star of daytime TV.

Northwest Missouri also has its programs of fitness offering aerobics and weight control through the women's resource center. However, most of the exercise programs happen in the darkened dungeon of Lamkin Gymnasium where students and faculty jog, lift, sweat and groan for a fit body.

Right: Runners track away the course in Lamkin Gymnasium. The runners must run 28 laps to make a mile.
